“ Jim Taylor, who will always be "Jimmy" to me, was my first cousin, the only one on my mother's side of the family. He was only two and a half years younger than me. As young children we grew up together in North Kansas City and, since we both were only children he seemed more like the brother I never had. I have many happy memories of playing together when we were younger, even when he would sometimes break my toys or once put sand in my mouth when we were playing in the sandbox.

When my family moved to Syracuse, Kansas for five years when I was in the third grade, I missed Jimmy very much and looked forward to family vacations where both my family and his family would travel together to exciting places like the Rocky Mountains or Yellowstone National Park.

When my family moved back to Kansas City during the summer before the eighth grade we no longer lived a few blocks from each other, but our families would go out to a restaurant together almost every Sunday after church and celebrated together on many holidays. In fact, as teenagers I seem to remember that Jimmy even took me to one prom when I was devastated that I didn't have a date.

After I moved to New York City in 1965 we saw less of each other, but I was always glad to be able to spend time with him and his family on trips back to Kansas City and to eventually have the chance to get to know his two beautiful daughters, Christy and Tiffany, as they were growing up, and eventually to get to know their children.

I will miss you Jimmy. Rest in peace. Alan and I send much love and lots of hugs to your daughters Tiffany and Christy; to your amazing grandchildren, Britany, Brianna, Briget, Taylor and Tyler; and to their families.
