“ I love the memory my Son shared to me. Ed asked you Krista to marry him, and you both picked the day to tell him. In your Tribute I see the picture of what Ed described of your Dad going up to Ed and shaking his hand in acceptance of this union. I love this memory as I see you two happy and sad in your trials and tribulations. This is what a good marriage is all about. Trials and Tribulations build strength in a marriage and allows you to lean on your partner and know you can't live without them. I think your Dad raised a very special and beautiful women to love my Son.

“ There are to many memories to share of my dad. However, we have had the opportunity over the past year to make many new ones and spend some quality time as a family. Dad kept his struggles very private and fought the battle to the very end. He was trying to build up strength through his last day. I will always admire the strength and courage he had facing this horrible disease. Now he is at peace and free from the body that held him captive. RIP Dad... I love you and I will always stand by you!
